PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

GUTTEN TAG!

To think, we are almost three-quarters of the way through my term as President and it seems I just started yesterday.

I hope that everyone who wanted to was able to attend the Club Workshop. Since this is being written before it occurs and published after the fact, I can only comment that I know Sally Marx has been working very hard and the results will be well worth it.

Another exciting event for NASC, this one in its second year, is the Member Club Gold Drawing. Depending on how many books your club sells, you can really benefit not only in dollars (one for each book sold) but also in gold pieces, given to those clubs who sell the greatest number of books. Carol Linn has it all organized. Your club should have received the initial information by now and the tickets will be available at the October 15 Board Meeting.

It is very encouraging to talk with some of the clubs who benefitted from last year's drawing. The money earned helped them pay the rent, add more prizes to their own drawings, underwrite their gold drawing and, in a couple of cases, put enough money in the treasury to keep them going another year.

I cannot stress too much that NASC does NOT make a profit from this venture. We only get one dollar on each book to cover expenses. If there is still money left after expenses, this excess is divided among the clubs, proportionately according to what they have sold.

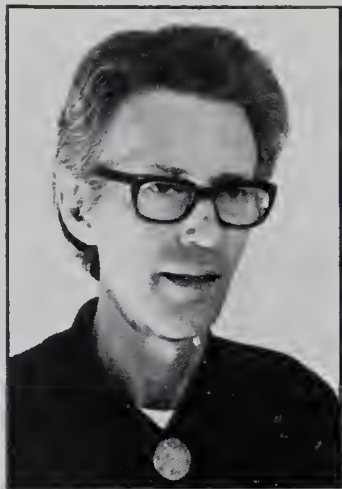

It isn't long 'til the January convention. Pass the word to your friends and associates that we will be at a new location — The Ambassador Hotel. The next issue of the Quarterly will have the complete listing of events.

Auf Wiedersehen,

Ex Cathedra Calida Numismatica

NASC has only had one "Official Printer" and his name has been in the list of Committee Chairmen for a very long time. Unfortunately, illness has forced Immediate Past President Myron "Mac" McClaflin to give up his printing business and that includes the NASC Quarterly.

Mac has been in the hospital three separate times this year and has come about as close to death as it is possible to come and still pull through. At the time this is written he is at home recovering — a long, slow process. We all hope that, in due course of time, he will be able to resume attendance at the coin clubs he loves so deeply.

In the meantime, life and publication dates go on. The printing of the Quarterly has been shifted to another firm, selected on the basis of convenience, capability, and competitive price bids from among those surveyed. This is the second issue they have produced and your Editor is quite pleased with the way things are working out. We are still "feeling our way" but the Editor is learning their system and they his.

There have already been some changes in the appearance of the Quarterly and there will probably be more as Ye Ed learns how to take advantage of some of the new resources at our disposal.

NASC 8th Annual Club Workshop

On Saturday, 16 September 1978, NASC held the eighth edition of its series of Club Workshops. This is one of the programs that NASC provides in its on-going effort to support, encourage, and promote numismatics at the local club level. All costs of the all-day workshop (including lunch for all participants) are covered by NASC and every NASC Member Club is contacted well in advance and invited to send representatives.

Over the years the Club Workshops have been held at various locations. For several years just past, the sessions were held on the southern side of Los Angeles in the City Of Commerce. This year, the location was moved to The Sportsmen's Lodge in Studio City in the San Fernando Valley. Regardless of specific location, easy access from the freeway system has always been a prime consideration since NASC's Member Clubs are spread out between Santa Maria, Bishop, and Victorville on the north, San Bernardino, Redlands, andemet on the east, and Fountain Valley, Tustin, and Laguna Hills to the South.

This year's workshop was chaired by Sally Marx and was devoted entirely to small group "person-to-person" discussions of problems facing all clubs. There were four sessions, allowing each club's two representatives the opportunity to participate in up to eight of the discussion groups. These groups were:

DEVELOPING LEADERSHIP: conducted by Peggy Borgolte and William O. Wisslead—both Past Presidents of NASC and both experienced in the leadership aspects of club activity.

BULLETINS: conducted by Ester Bromberg, Past Editor of the INS of San Gabriel Valley's award-winning club bulletin.

CLUB AUCTIONS: conducted by Murray G. Singer, Past President of NASC and regularly involved with commercial auctions both locally and on the national level.

EXHIBITS: conducted by Albert and Virginia Hall whose exhibits have won so many prizes they have become recognized authorities on the subject.

SECRETARY'S CORNER: conducted by Leonora Donald (NASC Historian) and ELizabeth Wisslead, each of whom has served many numismatic organizations in the past.

TREASURER'S TABLE: conducted by Nathan Bromberg who has served as treasurer of many local clubs.

JUNIORS: conducted by Ralph Marx, long-time promoter of junior activities and development.

SPEAKERS AND PROGRAMS: conducted by Shirley McInnis (NASC Speakers' Bureau Chairman) and J.H. McInnis, Jr. (NASC President Elect) who has had active experience as both a program chairman and as a speaker at numerous local clubs.

REFRESHMENTS AND HOSPITALITY: conducted by Workshop Chairman Sally Marx whose long-time active association with numerous local clubs has exposed her to the ins and outs of the subject.

The majority of the club delegates came prepared to talk as well as to listen and, therefore, the day's activities represented a true workshop. In many cases, one club's representative had experienced problems that were the same as (or similar to) those of others and many lively discussions resulted. Some of the problem areas had well-defined solutions that could be provided — others merely suggested areas for discussion of "things to try that sometimes work".

Overall, approximately half of the NASC Member Clubs were represented and those who participated seemed to feel that the results were well worth their sacrifice of a Saturday.

One can only wonder whether the clubs that didn't choose to participate are so successful (but so selfish) that they didn't need to receive help and didn't want to give any — or are they so far down into apathy that they don't care whether they succeed in serving their members and the prospective members in their communities?

German Coinage From 1919 Through 1939

by Dr. Thomas F. Fitzgerald

The End and The Beginning

The battlefields in France were quiet now as the sun began to peek at the countless series of trenches. It was November 8, 1918, and the war, as far as Germany was concerned, was virtually over. In a clearing of the forest of Compiègne, Marshall Foch presented the terms for an armistice to the German commander. Faced with the defeat of his armies in France and a bolshevist revolution at home, it took Kaiser Wilhelm only two days to decide to abandon his throne. The last of the Hohenzollerns secretly boarded a train at 4:30 A.M. on Sunday, November 10th and departed for exile in Holland.

Thus began the prolonged, tormented interregnum between the war's end and a general peace — roughly from November, 1918 to December, 1922 — a period of continuing upheavals throughout Europe and Asia as well as blunders committed by the world's statesmen as they dictated the terms of peace.

Peace Treaty

"No punitive damages," Wilson had stipulated, but the real mood of the peace conference was one of reprisals and reparations. The Treaty of Versailles not only stripped Germany of all her colonies, but Alsace-Lorraine was returned to France and the rich coal fields of the Saar Basin were temporarily surrendered to French administration. Her heaviest losses, however, were in the east. In addition to the former Polish provinces of the Empire, she had to hand over to Poland a sizable and disputed piece of Silesia along with a corridor to the Baltic, which divided East Prussia from the rest of the German Republic. The city of Danzig, almost wholly German in population, was detached from Germany and became a free port under international administration. The peace treaty deprived Germany of one-eighth of her European land area; of 6,500,000 people; of all her colonies; and of her foreign holdings and investments.

Even worse than the territorial injustices was the punitive spirit that crept into the peace treaties. The final draft of the document obliged the German signatories to acknowledge their country's sole responsibility for causing the war and required the new government to pay for all civilian damages suffered by the allies during the war. The amount was eventually fixed at the astronomic sum of $32,000,000,000. Germany was to pay a $5,000,000,000 installment by May, 1921.

The Weimar Republic

The march of communism was heard in the streets of Berlin as the demands of the peace treaty's harsh terms and the collapse of the old Empire reduced Germany's economy to the breaking point. Many saw the hope of the future under the Red Flag. Informed that the German leftist, Liebknecht, was going to proclaim a Soviet Republic, Philip Schneidemann ended a short address to the people of Berlin with these words:

"The old and the rotten—the monarchy—has collapsed. Long live the new. Long live the German Republic." (It was to last less than fifteen years.)

With these words, the Weimar Republic came into existence. Thus German democracy was born as an improvisation to head off a proletarian revolution. The Weimar Constitution was proclaimed in Germany on August 11, 1919.

Inflation

Fig. 2 — German Inflation

The German mark had already lost one-fourth of its value during the war. The strain of reparations payments — about one-eighth of the national income annually — contributed to its dizzy postwar decline. (To keep one's perspective, however, it is worth recalling that later on, after Germany had been freed of reparation payments, Hitler's military budget ate up one-sixth of the national income).

By 1921, the mark was exchanged at 75 to the dollar; the next year it fell to 400 and by the beginning of 1923, to 7,000 to a dollar. When the Weimar Republic defaulted in deliveries of timber in 1923, the hardheaded French premier, Poincare, ordered French and Belgian troops to occupy the Ruhr Valley. The industrial heart of Germany, which furnished the Reich with four-fifths of its coal and steel production, was cut off from the rest of the country. This strangulation of Germany's economy hastened the final plunge of the mark. Upon the occupation of the Ruhr in January, 1923, the mark fell to 18,000 to the dollar; by July 1st it had dropped to 50,000; by August 1st to a million. At the peak of the inflation the price of one copy of a daily newspaper rose to 20,000,000,000 marks and a postage stamp cost twelve billion marks. Insurance policies, savings deposits, and government bonds became almost worthless. German currency had become utterly valueless. The purchasing power of salaries was reduced to zero and the life savings of the middle and working classes were wiped out.

The Rise of Hitler

"I have a pretty thorough knowledge of history," the German writer Stefan Zweig writes speaking of Berlin in the 1920's, "but never to my recollection has it produced such madness in such gigantic proportions . . . Whoever lived through these apocalyptic months, these years, disgusted and embittered, sensed the coming of a counter blow, a horrible reaction." The reaction to which Zweig referred was, of course, Hitler's rise to power and subsequent bid for world hegemony.

The "war guilt" clause and the monstrous reparations bill imposed upon the defeated Germans probably contributed more than any other factors to the subsequent rise of Hitler.

Notgeld

Notgeld, emergency coinage, were actually tokens and should be translated as "necessity money." Although first issued in 1915, these tokens were a direct offspring of Germany's disastrous inflation and were naturally issued in enormous quantities. Produced from less valuable metals such as zinc, iron, bronze and aluminum, issues came from thirty-eight mints. However, most came from the Laurs at Nuremberg.

The issuance of Notgeld was legalized and regulated by a law passed on July 17, 1922 and tokens dated 1922 and 1923 were not struck for circulation but for sale. Notgeld was produced by many agencies to answer the demand for more money. It was issued by: (1) regional and local government administrations and banks, (2) large industrial concerns, (3) small firms, (4) civic organizations, (5) railroad and transportation companies, (6) the military and, (7) by individuals. All told, there are nearly five thousand different types of Notgeld.

Coins of the Weimar Republic

The complete dissolution of the Weimar Republic's economy was checked in 1923 by a forced stabilization of the mark at its pre-war value. A new Rentenmark, later replaced by the Reichsmark, was issued and circulated. In theory the Rentenmark was supposed to be based on tangible property values rather than gold. In reality, its only support was the eagerness of the German people to believe the end of the inflation had arrived. Shortly after the Rentenmark was first issued in 1923, it was joined by a Reichsmark, which designation was retained until the currency reform following World War II. The Imperial German Eagle, seen since the 1870s was utilized on many of these coins as were the symbolic devices of wheat, oak leaves and oak branches. The only figure to appear on the Republic's coins was the revered old president, Paul von Hindenburg.

Beginning in 1924, silver coins were again struck. But until the end of the Weimar Republic in 1933, all of them had a fineness of only 0.500, while the weight was only five grams per Reichsmark. An edge inscription, "Einigkeit Und Recht Und Freiheit," (Unity and Justice and Freedom) was sometimes employed. It is noteworthy that this motto was later utilized by the new Federal Republic commencing in 1951.

Coins for the Weimar Republic and the Third Reich of Hitler were struck at the following mints:

Y4 Although the Nazi Party came to power with the appointment of Hitler as chancellor in 1933, it was 1936 before the infamous swastika appeared on German coins.

During the National Socialist period (1933-1945) the weight of the five mark pieces was reduced to 13.88 grams, but the fineness was increased to 0.900. The two mark pieces of this period had a fineness of 0.625 and a weight of eight grams. The edge inscription of the regular two mark and five mark coins of this period is "Gemeinnutz

Commemorative Coins

The Weimar Republic, as was the case in other European nations, issued a number of coins to commemorate various anniversaries. These aesthetically designed and historically significant pieces represent a zenith in German monetary history from the artistic point of view. The magnificent ship under full sail on the three mark coin of 1927, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the founding of the city of Bremerhaven, designed by an unknown artist, is a striking example of German medalllic engraving at its very best.

The great "lighter-than-air" flying ship, the Graf Zeppelin, is shown majestically flying with the world as the background on the one and five mark coins of 1930.

The events between the wars were remembered with the three and five mark coins of 1929 marking the 10th anniversary of the Weimar Constitution; the three and five mark coins of 1930 commemorating the evacuation of the Rhineland by allied troops (5 years earlier than the provisions of the Versailles Treaty stipulated); and the two and five mark coins of 1934 observing the first anniversary of Nazi rule. Among the men honored by this series were Goethe, Martin Luther, and Friedrich Schiller.

Fig. 12 - Five Reichsmark Comm. - 1927

Fig. 13 - Five Reichsmark Comm. - 1930

TUPILAK—

A SHAMAN'S DREAM

By Keith Laumer

The Tupilak is found only in the Eskimo Cultures of Greenland. It is a carving of a dangerous spirit-being as visualized by the Shaman. By going into a self-induced trance, the Shaman was supposed to transfer his spirit to the Tupilak and bring it alive. Malevolent and dangerous, the Tupilak will cause harm to anyone the Shaman dislikes — breaking tools, causing disaster on the hunt, sinking boats, and generally making trouble. The Tupilak is portrayed as combining distorted human and animal characteristics in that surrealistic style that marks most Eskimo Shaman art and is so distinct from the genial naturalism of Eskimo hunter art. Originally carved mostly in wood or animal bone, there was a shift to Tupilak carving in Walrus Ivory in the last years of the nineteenth century as the Greenland Eskimos sought to develop trade goods acceptable to the Whites. The choice of material, then, has been influenced by contact with European culture, but the choice of subject and the execution is resoundingly non-western.

BRISTOL - GATEWAY TO THE WEST

by James L. Betton

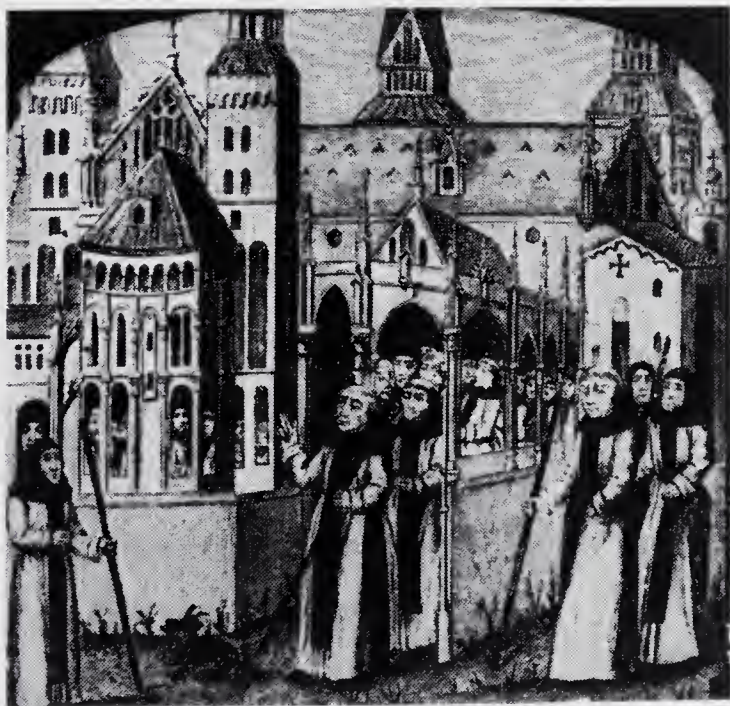

This great city, often known as the "Gateway To The West," is renowned for its long history and the important role it plays in the economy of Great Britain. In addition, Bristol has considerable numismatic significance. The first evidence that Bristol was becoming a trade center comes from the striking of two types of Silver Pennies during the reign of Aethelred II (978-1016). The Royal Castle in Bristol played an important part during the rebellion in the reign of Edward III. Only a few years after the rebellion, Bristol was made into a county under the Royal Charter of Edward III in 1373.

Over the next 150 years, Bristol grew into a major port of England and there was no end of wealthy merchants carrying on their business there. It was during the reign of wise King Henry VII that John Cabot sailed from Bristol in 1497 in the ship Matthew in search of new trading grounds. It was this voyage which resulted in the discovery of North America (with apologies to the Vikings), when he found the rich fishing areas around Newfoundland. In 1552, so great was the trading in Bristol that the Society of Merchant Venturers was founded. Many memorable voyages began at Bristol, such as that of Martin Pring who, in 1603, arrived in Massachusetts Bay and of Captain James who journeyed to Hudson Bay and James Bay in 1630.

When civil war broke out in 1642, Bristol was on the side of the Parliamentarians (better known as the "Roundheads"). In 1643, the city was captured by the Royalist Cavaliers and held until surrendered in 1645. It was during this two year period of capture that some interesting coins of Charles I were struck at Bristol — an interesting period for numismatics. The coins were not much different from the regional issues, but those of Bristol do bear the familiar "Bristol Plume" and the Bristol mintmark "Br" which can be found beneath the Kings Horse.

Bristol is still, perhaps, one of the finest examples of Georgian architecture and many of the beautiful Georgian buildings still stand today. It was in the year 1768 that Richard Champion started making Georgian porcelain in Bristol — porcelain that is still sought after by many people for its beauty and craftsmanship.

Bristol was and always will be a main seaport. Although the city has been greatly modernized to cope with economic growth, the historical fascination of Bristol still is plentiful, especially when one thinks of the sailors taverns, the press gangs, and the fully-rigged sailing ships. This is a city well worth visit. Remember, too, that here was the gateway that William Penn took three centuries ago to set sail and establish the first Quaker colony in Pennsylvania. Bristol, a city with a Historic Past.

In August, Bill Sadler presented a new slide program entitled "U.S. Coins In Silver And Copper". The Bay Cities Bulletin for August closes with sorrow the death of member Joe Geller.

CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF TOKEN COLLECTORS

CATC held their bi-monthly meetings in July and September and report a happy time of token-trading was enjoyed by all. Their July Bulletin discusses several (old and new) interesting token issues and the September issue reports on a new Catalog Of Amusement Tokens authored by CATC members Stephen Alpert and Kenneth Smith.

CALIFORNIA EXONUMIST SOCIETY

CES held its annual all-day meeting and show on July 30.

(Unfortunately, Ye Ed was out of town on vacation and couldn't attend — and no one sent in any sort of report on the activities).

CALIFORNIA WOODEN MONEY ASSOCIATION

Ruth Carver journeyed from Thousand Oaks out to Pomona in June to speak to CWMA. She presented a talk entitled "Tri-Chem". In July, CWMA held its annual Pot-Luck Dinner meeting. Guest speaker NASC Vice-President Nona Moore discussed "California Fractional Gold". Albert K. Hall spoke on "Nellie Tayloe Ross" (first woman to serve as Director Of The U.S. Mint) in August. September's speaker was NASC Past President James Betton (topic not listed in CWMA's September Bulletin).

CALTECH-JPL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY

June's regular meeting was bypassed in favor of a club evening out at Dodger Stadium for the Dodgers-Astros ball game. In July, George L. Russell spoke on "The Coins And Times Of King George III". Another outing was scheduled for August — this one an all-day family affair at Marineland. James L. Betton (NASC Past President) discussed "Alaska, A Collecting Frontier For Tomorrow" at the Society's September meeting.

CONEJO VALLEY COIN CLUB

Andy Hall gave a talk on the new ANA coin grading system in August. In addition, there were a number of games of Bingo to round out the evening's program.
